Parade of Boats To Mark Release Of Fish in Rodeo

Ceremony at 10 a.m. Sunday
At Grass Lake to Draw Large Crowd

Sunday will be Antioch's big day. Beginning at 10 a. m., almost 1,000 tagged fish will be released by State Conservation Department officers, each being numbered for one or more valuable prizes in the Illinois Fishing Rodeo, now definitely established as the greatest contest of its kind ever conducted.

Last Sunday was "Tag Day" and hundreds of black bass, northern and walleye pike, crappie and bluegills started swimming proudly about the ponds of the State Fish Hatchery at Spring Grove with a "new look" all their own.

Each was "decorated" with a small aluminum tag entitling the person lucky enough to catch its wearer to win one or more of some 3,000 prizes which have been contributed throughout the state with a total value of more than $50,000.

Parade at Grass Lake
This Sunday thousands of persons are expected to witness the release of these fish. The ceremonies will start from a decorated barge off the shores of Pregoner's Resort at Grass Lake. Then a cavalcade of power boats will follow the barge around both shores of Grass, Bluff, Petite and Channel Lakes and Lakes Catherine and Marie. More prize fish will be set free in waters off numerous resorts which have contributed prizes in the contest.

Similar ceremonies will be conducted at Fox Lake on Saturday afternoon. Both events will be broadcast over loudspeakers donated by Harry Robin of the Newark Electric Company in Chicago.

The Antioch fishing carnival will be sponsored jointly by the Conservation Department and the Antioch Lions Club, with William E. Brook, as chairman of the contest committee.

Rodeo to Start June 15

The rodeo itself will officially start Tuesday, June 15, opening day of the black bass season in Northern Illinois. Tagged fish caught from 12:01 a. m. on that date through (Continued on page 6, Section 1)

Child Falls Under Car Driven by Mother, Dies; Resident of Millburn

Carol Ann De Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George DeYoung of Millburn died in St. Therese hospital Saturday morning after regaining consciousness after she had fallen beneath the wheels of a car driven by her mother.

The 3-year-old girl had accompanied her mother to a mail box on Rte. 45, a mile from the farm to get the mail. While Mrs. De Young was turning the car around the little girl fell out under the rear wheel. Dr. Joseph Foley, the attending physician, said that the fall itself might have fatally injured her.

The funeral was held Tuesday at the Strang funeral home.

The child was born in Syracuse, N. Y., where she lived with her mother and grandmother while her father was in service. The parents moved to Millburn two years ago.

Curnes Opens Subdivision On East Edge of Village

W. H. Curnes is opening a subdivision three blocks east of the Antioch grade school and north of Depot st., just outside the village limits.

The lots are 128x340 feet, constituting an acre of ground and 30 of them will be for sale.

The land is one that Mr. Curnes acquired 14 years ago and was originally the Rinear subdivision. He has opened a road east and eventually will connect up with North ave.

One lot already has been sold and the owner is putting up a house.

Welfare Conference Stressed Importance Of Family as Vital

Persons attending the Illinois Welfare Conference at Waukegan this week were impressed with the importance of the development of family life and unity as a solution to social problems.

"We are emotionally mature if we deal with difficulties realistically and without hatred," said Louis de Boer in the talk he gave before the conference.

He said that one must have respect, people, play and live with the family and others with the minimum of conflict. This emotionally mature person comes from a home where he as a child had love and security; where he could identify with loving parents, and where he had encouragement to growth; where attitudes towards society and the world are extensions of intra-family attitude. The family is the determinant for maximal personal satisfaction, is the basis for physical and mental health, and ultimately for social progress, democracy and enduring peace. It is impossible to educate for maturity. This is developed through relationships and thus has meaning for social workers who can accept people and help bring out their strength to face and meet their problems.

Some conclusion from the stimulating panel discussion indicate the family is the most stable, sacred institution in America; families need re-education for family living; the family agency with skillful psychiatric help can and should serve all people who wish counseling, regardless of economic status; family relationship could be greatly enriched by spontaneously playing doing things together; children have a further sense of belonging when part of a constructive group activity; symptoms of children's maladjustment should be ascertained early; social agencies, church and school should work together much more to understand these symptoms, and bring such children to the attention of the skilled worker who is equipped to help them.

The Lake County Farm Bureau baseball team, under the direction of Richard Warfield, of Waukegan, will play its first scheduled game of the season on Saturday, June 12, starting at 2 p. m., according to Ray T. All the home games will be played at the Waukegan High school diamond. The season's schedule is as follows:

June 12—Boone County—here

National Food Store Opens Today With Big Stock and Many Buyers

H. W. Lang New Manager and Alice Freeman is Assistant

The National Tea Co. Food store opened at 10 a. m. today and the word traveled quickly that the store was the company's finest north of Chicago and that the stock is excellent.

A force of 24 including four checkers worked furiously in handling the first day's business and the management was satisfied that Antioch was appreciating its efforts.

The National is now in its new building adjacent to the one it has been occupying and has 7,991 square feet to display its wares.

New features of the store are the extensive self service frozen foods department, the complete new delicatessen department and believe it or not a drug department. The store has a full line of vegetables and the company sent its finest.

A number of "good will" men were on hand to aid in the opening. They represent the various products that will be handled.

The store is under new management, H. W. (Bill) Lang late of Chicago and now a resident of Lake Catherine having taken over, Mrs. Alice Freeman, who has been manager, will continue as assistant.

Henry Schroeder is in charge of the meat department.

Through the extra check-out stations the store expects to handle its business more rapidly, four check-out women being available at all times.

The store will be open Friday and Saturday evening during the summer months up to and including Labor Day.

Calvin P. Midgley is the director and the all-star cast includes such prominent members of the community as David Shrum, principal of the Lake Villa school, Elsie Heuer, Elaine Geng, Lorraine Boch, Joanne Midgley, Jack Mahoney and Carl Geng.

Dr. Midgley said that an effort was being made to present a completely professional performance in the selection of a truly worthwhile play and is sparing no necessary expense and time in its production. The play may be presented in other towns including the city of Chicago.

A new manager for the team is being sought this year to replace Emil Risch who will not be available.

Financial aid has been given the boys by the Williams Dept. Store, Bussie's Lounge, Powles Market, Gibbs Variety Store, Barnstable's Clothing store, King's Drugs, Ford Garage, Harry Krueger, Johnny Wagner, Brooks Real Estate, Antioch News, Joe and Helen Sterbenz, Bud's Tavern, Wes' Body Shop and Red Robin of Waukegan.

To Widen Main Street From Postoffice South To Ida Ave. Arterial

Improvement Through Motor Fuel Tax Money to Remove Hazard

Widening of Main st. from the postoffice south to Ida ave. through motor fuel tax money was approved by the district officials of the state highway department as the result of a meeting of Antioch Village officials with them last Tuesday in Elgin.

George B. Bartlett, president of the Village board and Walter Scott and James Mapleshorpe, trustees, conferred with Mr. Wells on the matter and Engineer Casser will come here in a short time to plan the improvement.

President Bartlett said the curbing would be removed and the street widened a total distance of about 10 feet or 5 feet on both sides.

The widening will permit parking in front of business houses in that area without making two-lane traffic hazardous.

Ida avenue is to be made an arterial street and maintained with motor fuel tax money.

Glenda Mossman Enrolls As Organ Pupil of Dupre At University of Chicago

Miss Glenda Buchanan Mossman of Woodcrest, RFD, Antioch, is one of 28 organists registered for the summer master class with Marcel Dupre, famed French organist and composer who will teach on the University of Chicago campus, June 28 through July 31.

The advanced organ students who will be members of the class come from 12 states and Canada. One student from Duncan, Okla., will commute to Chicago each week for the sessions. The other out-of-town musicians will remain in Chicago throughout the month's study.

Marcel Dupre, who comes to the University of Chicago campus directly from his post at the St. Sulpice Cathedral in Paris, is one of the world's most noted Bach players. He is also a composer of some note, his works including: The Passion Symphony, The Prelude and Fugue in G Minor, and The Symphonic Poem, "Evocation."

Dupre played concerts to overflowing crowds on his first visit to the campus in the summer of 1946. In addition to conducting the master class for advanced organ students, he will again play public recitals in the University of Chicago's famed Rockefeller Memorial Chapel. The concerts will feature the pre-Bach composers, the works of Johann Sebastian Bach, Cesar Franck, Marcel Dupre, and other modern composers.

On Sunday it will travel to Fox River park to play Wilmet. Both games are expected to be interesting ones.

Last Sunday the Sequoians made a poor showing against Silver Lake, Wis., losing 3 to 16. The weather was cold and overcast but there was a fair sized crowd.

Blerdz, the Silver Lake pitcher held the local team to four hits; on the other hand his teammates got 16 hits off Krizan.

Board Rejects All Bids On Plumbing, Wiring of New Fire Barn Building

Will Open Bids Again Next Tuesday Night During Special Meeting

Although there were six bids for the plumbing and wiring of the new fire station, the village board rejected all of them and is re-advertising the contract again.

Only one of the six bids was said to have carried the legal agreement calling for adherence to plans and specifications, and that bid was too high, it was said.

One or two of the bidders were said to have set forth their own plans and specifications which could not be accepted.

The board will meet on Tuesday, June 15 to make the annual appropriation and bids will be opened again at that time. Although the delay cannot be helped, the construction work is now at a standstill until the plumbing contract is let.

The varieties will be checked throughout the season, length for maturity determined, and at harvest time, yield per acre calculations will be made. The six varieties included in the test plot, and which were planted with a corn planter at the rate of one bushel per acre, are: Hawkeye Earlyana, Manchuk 606, Mukden, Richland and Lincoln. The results of the test plot will be published following harvest.

Marjorie Young's Dance Recital Aided by Artists Proves Fine Attraction

Performing before capacity audiences both in Antioch and Fox Lake the Marjorie Young studio recital, "Mythical Mysteries," proved to be a highly entertaining attraction.

The Friday evening performance here included as a special attraction the radio entertainer, Two-Ton Baker, who pleased the children especially.

It was the performance of the teacher's own students in dancing, singing and beautiful costumes that attracted and entertained the adults, however.

Lake Villa Farmer First To Sell Wool in New Pool

Herman Rother, Lake Villa township farmer and member of the Lake County Farm Bureau, is the first farmer in Lake County to sell his wool through the recently organized Lake County Farm Bureau Wool pool.

This wool pool was organized by the Lake County Farm Bureau in response to several requests from sheep raisers in Lake County who desired this method of selling their wool.

The advantages of the wool pool are that the farmer is paid for his wool in accordance with the particular grade of his wool, and wool buyers usually pay a higher price for the wool at the wool pool where it is possible for them to purchase large quantities of wool of whatever grade they desire.

Caught In The Vise

In a recent editorial, which was based upon the Congressional hearings on high prices, the Atlanta Constitution observed that the retailer is not the villain of the piece. Then it said: "The truth of the matter is that the businessman is as much caught in the vise of inflation as is the customer."

"The grocer, the furniture man, the department store manager, have no control over the prices they pay the processor or manufacturer. It is one of those vicious cycles in which the butcher, the baker and candlestick maker all get caught up and whirled around. . . .

"Production—replacement of shortages with plenty—seems the only answer now the dilemma has reached present proportions. . . . The retailer simply hasn't got the answer."

The testimony of retailing before the Congressional subcommittees was impressive in the extreme. Spokesmen for all kinds of stores, including both independents and chains, pointed out that profit margins are no longer than in the past and in many cases are even smaller. That is the result of intense competition and of retailing's desire to give the consumer every possible break, as a matter of good business. But prices have moved inexorably upward, and retailers are powerless to stop the spiral.

Every intelligent retailer, like every intelligent manufacturer, knows that price inflation menaces the American system of mass production and mass distribution which has given us the highest standard of living on earth. They are fighting it with every resource they possess. But they can't do the job alone.

A Leach On The Treasury

The Tennessee Valley Authority was initially proposed as a "yardstick" to measure the propriety of the rates charged by the private electric industry. As established, it is one of the phoniest measuring devices imaginable.

You don't have to take any private utility spokesman's word for this. It is emphasized in the last audit of TVA made by the General Accounting Office of the U. S. Government. This audit cites a series of reasons why TVA's "cost of power operations may not be compared with a private power company's operations."

TVA is not required to charge to power operations depreciation on the cost of land rights, clearing transmission lines and reservoirs, and other related expenses. The audit estimates this indirect subsidy at $500,000 a year.

TVA "contributes" relatively small sums in lieu of taxes to state and local governments. It pays nothing in Federal income or other taxes. Private utilities, by contrast, pay substantially more than 20 per cent of their gross income in taxes.

TVA has outstanding $50,000,000 in bonds, all held by the U. S. Treasury. It pays only 1 per cent interest—far less than private enterprise can borrow money for, and less than the interest on Treasury bonds in the hands of the public. And it pays no interest on the additional $400,000,000 the taxpayers have invested in its power operations.

The audit lists many more reasons that show TVA is a crooked yardstick. The truth is that it is subsidized by all the people in every phase of its activities. It is a leach on the public treasury—as are all the other socialized power systems.

Second Class Patients!

The beauties of compulsory health insurance were recently illustrated in a large western city which has that kind of a system in effect for municipal employees.

The director of the system sent a letter to all doctors associated with it, pleading that it is in financial difficulties, and making three remarkable requests.

First, he asked that doctors restrict the use of laboratory tests, X-ray examinations and normal diagnostic procedures, and substitute "routine examinations" for careful, scientific diagnoses.

Second, he asked that they discourage patients with "minor ailments" from seeking professional medical treatment, and advise them to use home remedies.

Third, he ordered that hospitalization be denied to system members except in the most critical cases, and except on specific authorization by himself.

The executive committee of the local county medical society answered this by observing that "neither your doctor nor any reputable doctor can in clear conscience agree to a demand that city employees be denied adequate medical care and that they be treated as 'second class patients.'" That answer covers the ground completely. The logical result of any other policy would be what has happened under socialized medicine in England, where overworked doctors must deal with excessive numbers of patients and only the few can be given really individual attention and diagnosis.

Compulsory health insurance on a national scale would be a reflection of the condition in the western city multiplied a thousand times. When politics takes over medicine, the standards of medical care inevitably go down.

NEW TYPE DISEASE KILLS YOUNG PIGS

Swine raisers and veterinarians are on the alert this year for fresh outbreaks of a deadly new intestinal disease of baby pigs.

Some authorities call it "transmissible gastro-enteritis" and believe

The danger is for baby pig disease.

It is caused by a . . . The disease affects swine of all ages, but rarely causes death except among pigs under 10 days old. On some farms last season it killed practically all of the spring pigs.

Typical symptoms include vomiting, vomiting, and rapid loss of weight—followed by death in very young pigs, and slow recovery in older swine.

These symptoms are similar to those of several other common diseases of swine. The disease must be differentiated, for instance, from other types of bowel infection such as white scours. It must be distinguished also from pig typhoid, navel infection, uremic poisoning, hypoglycemia, three-day pig disease, toxemia and other digestive upsets. Veterinarians say this is the only known disease that causes such a high death rate in very young pigs, and at the same time affects also the sows and abattoirs on the farm.

Fortunately, "transmissible gastro-enteritis" can usually be eliminated from the premises if farmers do a thorough job of cleaning and disinfecting after an outbreak. There is no known medical treatment, but an accurate veterinary diagnosis is highly important. If some other disease is the primary cause of trouble, the pigs can be treated and heavy death losses may be prevented.

and I was sorry that I hadn't taken time to dress it up a little. "That must be something extra," Ethel said, giving away the fact that all presents had been accounted for in her baby's little mind.

She gave an embarrassed laugh when she saw the shabby box, anticipating another joke. But when she opened it, there was only the string of small, well-worn pearls. Not real ones, of course, but well matched and graded. As Joan read the card, a burst of incredulous laughter rose throughout the room.

"Why of course, Ethel, I'll own up," I said quickly.

"A pearl for every year of happiness when you wear these on your wedding day. Why, it isn't even signed."

Ethel's voice was shrill over the buzz of comments in the room. "This must be a joke. As I would wear those—those pearls with my wedding gown. I think the person who did this should own up. And I have a pretty good idea," turning and looking pointedly at me, "who it is."

I stood up. "Why of course, Ethel, I'll own up," I said quickly. "And I did hope that you might wear them at your wedding. But I can see that it was a mistake on my part, and I'm truly sorry for what I did. But there's one consolation." I couldn't help adding when I saw the look of triumph in her eye. "You'll not get a duplicate of these at another shower. You see, they belonged to our grandmother."

versatile. Some cities used them in March of Dimes drives and for the fight against infantile paralysis by urging motorists to deposit an additional dime each time they park their cars.

There are indications that some northwestern farmers may be allergic to them. Brighton, Ore., recently voted to remove its parking meters because they apparently induced some farmers to take their business to other cities where parking was free.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Sen. Tom Stewart, (Dem., Tenn.), received the following letter from a 12-year-old boy in his state named George: "Dear Tom: I read that you have some horses captured by the U. S. army overseas."

George then promised the senator his vote "when I get big." The boy wrote to Senator Stewart after reading that he had urged the state department to retain a number of captured Hungarian horses as war booty.

SHOOT STORY

Thunder Shower

By NORMA MOSHER

JOAN ROBERTS called me the other day. Rather surprisingly for I hadn't seen her in years, and after the usual exchanges, "How are you? It's too bad we don't see one another more often," she got down to the point.

"Did you know your cousin Ethel was being married next month?"

"I was aware of the fact," I replied, rather grimly. "I've already been to three of her showers."

"Well, since I'm to be a bridesmaid, I simply have to have one, too. I've decided on next Tuesday, and I thought you might like to come."

"This was a 'miscellaneous' shower, which, as everybody knows, means that you can bring anything from the bookends Aunt Hattie sent you for Christmas to the pillow slips you picked up during the January sales for $1.98."

Our household, unfortunately, never seems to yield any hidden treasures at the right moment, so I bought a rose bowl at the little gift shop up at the corner.

I didn't get it wrapped until the last minute, as usual, and as usual, I found that there wasn't a bit of fresh ribbon in the house.

BUT I still had the pearls to wrap up. Much as I disliked the idea, I had to pass them along to the next bride in the family—although Ethel didn't seem like family to me, because until recently we hadn't seen her in ages. I didn't even know whether she remembered the pearls, but the shower would provide a good opportunity to give them to her. So I did them up the best I could, not forgetting the little card that always went with them.

You know the old routine by now. When the scout posted at the door to watch for the guest of honor called "Here she comes!" the lights were turned out, and there was comparative silence broken only by a few giggles from the 'teen-agers. Then, as Ethel stood in the doorway, everyone yelled "Surprise!" on went the lights, and she put on a fairly convincing display of amazement.

We all sat around in the usual circle, with Ethel opening the gifts and Joan reading the accompanying cards. Then they were passed on to be duly admired and exclaimed over, and returned via the circle to Ethel. The donor of the seventh gift, by tradition to be the next bride, turned out to be a stoutish matron who lived down the street and had three strapping half-grown boys.

IT was getting late, and we were hopefully sniffing the fragrance of the coffee brewing in the kitchen when Ethel reached "way down for the last package. The white paper and red cord looked rather plain after all the other pretty wrappings,

SHORT STORY

Always
A PayoffBy
KATHRYN BEMIS

HENRY HALL came breezing into his suburban bungalow. No Mandy in the kitchen, no wife Grace in sight! "Grace will warm up something and call it dinner!" he sputtered. "Why does she play bridge on Mandy's day off?" But after living 10 years with a bald-headed, flat-chested little scrimp of a man like himself, a modest-salaried manager of a women's apparel shop, he couldn't blame Grace for craving entertainment.

He switched on a lamp in the living room and settled into his chair by the radio.

He took out the first volume his hand touched. Perhaps a little Shakespeare would brighten his talk.

He started as something flew out from a leaf, zig-zagged to the rug, and landed on his nose.

A $10 bill! He snatched it up, stuffed it into his billfold. Grace, hiding her money in books! He yanked out another masterpiece, shook it. Two more tens fluttered before Henry's eyes.

Within a few minutes, he had shaken down $200, instead of meek knowledge, from the awe-inspiring tomes.

BUT from that night on, Henry was worried. The allowance he gave Grace was small. She must have scrimped on household expenses a long time to save that money. What sinister project was she planning?

So he was greatly relieved one evening when she met him at the door and quavered, "Oh, Henry, I've been robbed!"

Henry managed to look concerned. He asked, "Robbed? What's gone?"

"Two hundred dollars I saved from the house-money! I hid it in the encyclopedia! I've slaved—done without Mandy days on end—saved what I would have paid her—"

"Her bitter disappointment overcame his desire to punish her. He jumped up, saying, 'Wait! Just a minute!'"

He raced upstairs to his clothes closet. He reached into its dark confines for his old brown coat.

"Where in the dickens is my old brown suit?" he called downstairs.

"That moth catcher? I warned you I'd give that rag away or burn it up! But I did even better. The old clothes man gave me 50 cents for it!"

FROM now on, Henry was a changed man. Finding that old brown suit had become his obsession. Then one morning when giving instructions to one of his saleswomen, he abruptly wheeled about, dashed out to the street. He grabbed a passing man by the collar of his shabby brown coat, demanding, "Where'd you get that suit?"

The voice of the stranger shook with fear of the madman he judged Henry Hall to be. "Griss and Griscom made it for me—five years ago," he said conciliatingly.

"Ha!" jeered Henry, not relaxing his hold. "Griss and Griscom made

"Where the dickens is my old suit?" he called downstairs.

that suit for me—the label's inside! Smart, aren't you?"

"What's coming off here?" snapped a policeman, thrusting Henry aside.

"This man's wearing my suit—he's got the money—he's—"

After the matter had been talked out before the police sergeant and Henry was convinced that the stranger had once been affluent enough to buy custom-made suits and now was clothed in one of them, he returned to the shop, a chastened man.

Mandy's black face wore a broad grin that night when she placed the beef roast before Henry. She said, "Mr. Hall—you know what? My boy fren' looks swell in your ol' brown suit he bought off'en that ol' cios' man. He's sure generous too."

"What's that?" asked the suddenly alert Henry.

"You see, we's fixin' to get married, Mr. Hall. Not havin' steady work, I ain't saved much, but that man's makin' up for it! He's already bought me a white 'lectric 'frigrator—big as two like you'd all's got!"

Gigantic Statues Found

Recently uncovered ruins of San Augustin in Southern Colombia contain a veritable forest of gigantic statues, some reaching a height of 40 feet.

Cobb and Ruth

Ty Cobb, born in 1886, became a big leaguer in 1905 and quit the game after 1928. Babe Ruth, born in 1895, became a big leaguer in 1914 and quit in 1935.

Increased Demand For Snuff

The consumption of snuff has been substantially unchanged for about 30 years. Some 34 million pounds were produced in 1916, 41 million pounds in 1929 and 36 million pounds in 1933. The production peak was 43,800,000 pounds in 1945. The use of snuff and chewing tobacco increased during World War II. This was believed largely due to restrictions on smoking in some war plants. The sustained demand for snuff is attributed to its traditional use by certain low income groups and by persons of some nationalities.

Trout Fishing

Best bait for trout, when the water is cold, high or muddy, and they won't take flies, are worms and minnows. Worms should be allowed to drift naturally with the current, bumping along the bottom and tumbling into the spots where such food settles naturally. Minnows either may be drifted with the current or pulled against it. They should be fished deep. Big trout have a weakness for them.

Cattle Disease Curb

Research to develop improved methods of combating the costly cattle disease, anaplasmosis, is underway. The disease is reported to exist in 27 of our 48 states, and is particularly troublesome in southern and south central areas of the United States. The estimated national loss from anaplasmosis last year was between three and four million dollars. In Oklahoma, alone, it exceeded half a million dollars.

Meat Substitutes

Milk and eggs supply amino acids in even better amounts than does muscle meat, take less grain to produce, and contain certain food values not contributed by meat. Heart, muscle and other glandular or so-called variety cuts of meat also are superior to muscle meat in amino acids and often are available for less money.

Goggles for Ducks

Ducks have a transparent membrane to pull over their eyes when in flight—like goggles.

SHORT STORY

A Quiet Evening

JOE went into the elevator of Sallie's apartment building, settling his coat on his shoulders with a satisfied smile. After all, one might as well live in style! Sallie probably paid no more for her room in this building than Rita did in that walk-up flat where she had roomed for three years.

"Rita is a good sort," he told himself with a note of apology even in the thought, "but Sallie—say, there's a girl with dash to her!"

3 - Minute Fiction

Sallie had rushed in with a wrap over her arm: "Oh, Joe, I'm so glad you happened in. They're throwing a dance over at Kitty's and—"

"But, say, after the way I've worked all day, Sallie, I absolutely can't dance all night!—I just thought we'd have a quiet evening and—talk—"

He did not go on to say that he had wanted to talk over serious problems with her such as the burning question as to whether two could live as cheaply as one.

"A quiet evening?" she repeated. "Who in heaven's name wants a quiet evening?"

Her piquant little face upturned to him, Joe allowed himself to be hurried from the room and down in the elevator.

"How far is it to this—Kitty's? Was that the name of the girl?" asked Joe.

Sallie nodded. "You met her a month ago—the same night you met me, Joe. Don't you remember her—a girl with red hair—no wave at all and long green earrings?"

"I'm not going," said Joe, stubbornly.

Sallie looked up at him, her foot on the running-board of the taxi. "Oh—yes, you are," she said. "Yes—you—are, Joe Marshall!"

"What's the address?" Joe asked quietly.

He repeated it to the cab driver. "How much—about?" asked Joe.

"'Bout four-sixty," answered the man.

Joe handed him a five-dollar bill. "Keep the change," he said, closing the door.

He turned down the street in Rita's direction mechanically. Five dollars! His lunch money for days gone. He shrugged; after all, a fellow could not expect to take out a girl like Sallie without spending. He had thought that he would visit with her all evening as he had done so often at Rita's but this girl—strictly modern, he told himself. He had thought to buy a box of candy for her and this was yet in his pocket. It was a fancier box than he had ever taken Rita, he thought.

Rita herself opened the door. "Hello," she said, warmly. "I wasn't expecting you, Joe. No—come back here to the dining room. Mrs. Matson had to go to the den. From the sense and wisdom behind Rita's eyes, he might even learn goodness, too.

tist's and I'm taking care of the youngsters. Mary is at her homework."

"Maybe Mary'd like some of this candy I brought," said Joe. "And I was wondering, Rita, about—that furniture we were talking about—"

"Are you proposing to her?" demanded Mary.

Now it was Joe's turn to flush. The kid needed a spanking. But he managed to get out with, "Any objections?"

"I was hoping that Rita'd marry a good-looking man," retorted this surprising youngster.

Joe stared at Mary. Then, faintly, he began to see the humor of the situation. He looked directly into Rita's eyes. In them, he thought, he might be good-looking. And from the sense and wisdom behind Rita's eyes, he might even learn goodness, too.

"Yes," he said to the youngster, directly answering her question, "yes, I am proposing."

Parade of Boats....

September 15 will be eligible for prizes, which range from boats and outboard motors, through rods and reels, boots, waders, jackets, fitted tackle boxes and other outdoor equipment down to lines and lures.

Many extra prizes have been offered for "firsts" in the rodeo. The first boy or girl under 18 years of age to catch tagged fish will receive handsome bronze trophies contributed by the Horrocks-Ibbetson Company, tackle manufacturers. The first woman to capture a tagger will be awarded a beautiful hand-painted silk blouse donated by H. and M. Frick, Chicago designers. The first man to catch a prize fish will be given a Schick electric razor from the Arnold Jewelers in Chicago. A number of resorts will give special prizes for tagged fish caught by their customers. All these extra prizes are in addition to the regular awards listed for each numbered tag.

Take to Agencies

For convenience of contestants, numerous "certification agencies" have been set up around the Chain O' Lakes. When an angler catches a prize fish, he or she may take it to any of these "certification agencies," where his catch will be registered and the contestant advised where his prize may be picked up. Contestants over 18 years of age must present their fishing licenses when they register their fish. Tags must be surrendered when awards are received.

In addition to fish released in the Fox Chain, others bearing prize tags are being set free in the following lakes: Fish, Loon, Crooked, Diamond, Sand, Grays, Gages, Griswold, Crystal, Bangs, Zurich, Maple, Calumet, Memorial, Dolton, Ellyn, Prince, Herriek, Churchill Preserve, McDougall, Jack's Channels, and Fox and DuPage Rivers.

Third listing of prizes:

Locusts in Bolivia

Bolivian government has made available approximately $100,000 to its ministry of agriculture for conducting a locust campaign. An all-out effort is being made by every conceivable means including the use of poison baits with new insecticides to combat the first generation of young locusts hatched in Bolivian territory. Since last October, when invading hordes of the migratory insect swept into central and southern Bolivia, the country has been faced with a serious insect problem as it has ever had to contend with.

Owls in the U. S.

All told, about 200 varieties of owls inhabit the earth; some 18 different kinds live in the United States. Owls in this country include everything from the great gray and horned owls of northern forests to the tiny Whitney's elf owl which, when puffed up with rage, is only as large as a good sized fist.

Painting Baseboards

When painting baseboards, hold a cardboard close against the wall above the baseboard. This will prevent the possibility of getting paint on the wall or wallpaper above. Such cardboard are also very useful when washing baseboards, since they prevent the water from marking the wallpaper.

Wild Rubber Trees

Equador still produces rubber from wild trees and small plantations. Caucho, a large tree up to 100 feet tall and one foot in trunk diameter, is characterized by large, hairy, toothed leaves arranged in two drooping rows along nearly horizontal branches.

Crayfish

Crayfish eyes are dark at night and light in the daytime.

Pilot Error Causes Most Air Crashes

WASHINGTON.—While pilot error is blamed for most air crashes, new systems of perfecting pilot technique are being developed constantly.

During the war the air force lost more than half as many pilots in training accidents as it lost in combat. An air force study of the experiences of 480 flyers since the war disclosed one important fact:

All pilots make mistakes some times.

Some pilots make more errors than others, and some errors are more common than others.

Half of all the errors reported were "substitutions"—that is, operating the wrong control, such as lowering the wing flap instead of the landing gear.

Nearly one-fifth were "adjustment"—moving a control too much or too little or not moving it fast enough.

Nearly one-fifth of the mistakes were simply forgetting to do something.

Move Controls Wrong

The rest of the errors were caused by moving a control the wrong way, moving it unintentionally or by not being able to reach it.

Robert V. Garrett, chief pilot and a senior accident investigator for the civil aeronautics board, says two things need to be done:

1. Cockpits should be standardized.

2. Pilots should be trained more.

The air force and the navy have taken one important step toward standardization by grouping the six basic instruments used in "blind flying." These are the air speed indicator, directional gyro-compass, artificial horizon, altimeter, turn and bank indicator.

Most errors, in fact about one-fifth of all pilot mistakes, occur in the "power group"—the four handles which control fuel mixture, propeller pitch, fuel and supercharger. They must be operated in that order when increasing power, and in the reverse order to decrease it.

Need Natural Arrangement

The natural arrangement would appear to be to place the controls in the order of use, but few planes have it that way.

The second most common failing—confusing flap and wheels—accounts for one error in eight. In most airplanes those controls are in the same area and sometimes have the same shape. Both are used in landings and takeoffs.

Garrett proposes that all cockpits be standardized, whether for military, commercial or private planes.

A further step might be changing the movement of some controls, such as from horizontal to vertical or rotary. Still another step might be to place the light used to show whether a control is on or off right in the handle instead of above, below or beside it.

The next big move for safety is to increase training. Flight training is expensive. It costs as much as $1,500 an hour in a large 4-engine plane. When a mistake occurs it can be very expensive, but not as expensive as it would be at a later date.

Youthful Iowa Pranksters Enact "Ganglike Killing"

MANNING, IOWA.—Townpeople here who stumbled over each other in their attempts to get out of the way of a murderous gangster car now are attempting to convince themselves that they knew it was a fake all the time.

Five high school youths from Audubon admitted that they staged the "killing," complete with blank shotgun shells and bloodlike catsup, to relieve the monotony of a dull Sunday afternoon.

They said that after they drove to Manning, James McLeran, one of the youths, began running down Main street. Two others chased him and fired three shotgun blasts. McLeran fell, spilling catsup as he did so. The other roared up in McLeran's car, tossed the "body" into the back seat, and sped out of town.

Frightened witnesses called Sheriff Tom Finegan, who thought he had a crime on his hands until several youths told him they had seen the "death car" earlier in the afternoon and that some Audubon boys were in it.

Finegan traced the youths to the Audubon high school, where he found that everyone knew about the "killing." He arrested the youths and took them to the county jail at Carroll. The boys promised: "We won't do it again."

Late for Work, Woman Calls Police for Transportation

EVANSVILLE, IND.—When Katherine Hoskinson, deputy city clerk, couldn't get a taxicab to take her to work, she called police. Two breathless patrolmen arrived. But Mrs. Hoskinson was late, anyway. It took her quite a while to explain to the police that nothing was wrong and all she wanted was a free ride to city hall.

SHORT STORY

Ebb-Tide Of Fear

By FERN AUBLE

EDDIE RITCHER closed the hospital door gently. He stood outside for a moment, his eyes narrowed thoughtfully. Inside, his wife lay quietly, a gentle smile curving her lips as she held Eddie's promise to her heart.

"Don't you worry your pretty little head about anything, Mary," he had told her, his eyes earnest and loving. "Everything's going to be all right. I've got the promise of a fine new job and we won't have to worry about bills or expenses or anything from now on."

Eddie Richter, one-time money rider. Even yet, jockeys throughout the racing world talked of him with more than a little awe. He was a sort of shining star toward which silk-clad figures, up for the first time in a classic of sleek horseflesh, groped for inspiration. For Eddie Richter had been an inspired rider.

That it, until the day he was up on Galloping Wind, the great chestnut mare that had startled the entire racing world with her amazing bursts of speed.

On the day in question, he looked at the track nervously. It had drizzled all night and the course was a sea of mud. The horses were brought to the barrier, and Eddie leaned over Galloping Wind's neck and spoke to her reassuringly. She tossed her head and reared. The horses broke raggedly and Galloping Wind, on the outside, ran last.

At the three-quarter post, Eddie leaned over and said coaxingly, "Come on, girl, now's the time. You can do it. Why, the rest of these bangtails can't touch you for speed. Come on, now, let's show 'em."

Galloping Wind lengthened her stride in response to the appeal in Eddie's voice. She moved up, making her bid. And then, with victory within grasp, Galloping Wind stumbled and went down with Eddie under her.

When they got him out, the Doc shook his head as he went over Eddie's body with knowing fingers. "I don't know," he said doubtfully, "he's pretty much bungled up. We can tell more after we get him to the hospital and have X-rays taken."

He lay there four months, his broken body an intolerable agony. The pain wouldn't have been so bad, if he could have gotten the picture out of his mind of lying under Galloping Wind, the thunder of flying hoofs coming toward him. Something had gone out of Eddie then and been replaced by fear.

When he came out of the hospital, he and Mary faced the fact that their savings were gone. Things got steadily worse. Eddie didn't know anything but horse racing and he couldn't endure the sight of a horse.

Finally, matters came to a climax when Mary had to be rushed to hospital for an emergency operation. She came through all right, but behind the love in her eyes there was worry too.

As he stood outside the door Eddie came to his decision. He left the hospital and turned toward the track and to George Graybar. Graybar, fabulously wealthy sportsman, owner of the Garbar stables from which had come Shooting Comet, Whirlwind, Highpockets and a host of other famous horses—and Galloping Wind.

Something in Eddie's face brought a welcoming smile from Graybar. "Well, it's about time, Eddie," he boomed. "I wondered how long it would be before you'd be around to see me."

They walked out to the stables, to the smell of clean hay and the nickerings of the horses in their stalls. When they came to the last stall, there was Galloping Wind.

The great horse stretched out her neck and nuzzled softly. Eddie swallowed the lump in his throat as he turned to Graybar who was watching them.

"She remembers me!" Eddie's eyes were shining. "When can I ride her, sir?" There was a great excitement in his eyes.

Eddie had come home.

Frozen Precooked Foods
A recent development is the freezing of precooked foods. To serve these foods it is necessary only to heat them in a controlled oven for a predetermined length of time. Some processors put complete meals on disposable plates so that the meal can be prepared by simply heating the prepared plate. Frozen precooked foods have been most widely accepted by railroads, air lines, and steamship lines. Many apartment-house dwellers, with none too adequate kitchen facilities and little time to use those that they have, find such foods convenient.

Painting Ceilings
A ceiling of dark color absorbs light and a shiny surface causes glare. Therefore, a light, flat finish is recommended by lighting specialists.

Non-Renewable Resources
Three most important non-renewable resources for an industrial economy are petroleum, iron ore and aluminum ore.

Buying Anti-Freeze
It is not safe to use an anti-freeze manufactured with either a salt or petroleum base.

4-H Keeping Fit Field Day to be Conducted On June 18 at Grayslake

A 4-H Club Keeping Fit Field Day has been scheduled for Lake County on Friday, June 18, from 10 a. m. to 3:30 p. m., at Grayslake, according to Ray T. Nicholas, farm adviser, and Helen Volk, home adviser.

The Lake County Keeping Fit Field Day will be held on the Grayslake Grade school grounds. The day's activities will be at 10:00 a. m. when the 4-H boys and girls will be weighed, measured and given heart tests. Following these tests, individual motor fitness tests will be given each member.

A picnic lunch, each member to bring his own food, will be held at noon, after which a discussion on health will be given by a staff member of the University of Illinois, and more fitness tests given.

A special feature of the afternoon program will be the demonstration and training in tumbling.

Four-H Club members and their parents are invited to the Field Day, the latter to observe the tests.

The purpose of the Field Day is to create an active interest among rural young people in keeping in good physical condition. The farm and home advisers point out that physical fitness means four things:

(1) your body is well developed for your age; (2) your heart, lungs, and digestive organs are sound; (3) you can do muscular tasks without becoming too tired; and (4) your body has the power to protect itself against both danger and disease.

There are 4 steps 4-H Club members can take to attain this full degree of health: (1) find out how fit you are now; (2) plan a program that will improve your health, and stick to it; and (3) measure the progress you make.

Mrs. Julia Palaske left Wednesday for Denver, Colorado, where she will visit her son, Otto and wife.

Card Of Thanks

We wish to thank the Rescue Squad for their kind assistance during our recent illness.

First American Sulky

The first sulky to appear on a track in the United States was along in the 1830's. It was a four-wheeler, and the chances are it was nothing more than an ordinary family buggy, for four passengers, with a seat large enough only for the driver.

Water Moccasin

The water moccasin is a southern reptile. Like most water snakes it is roughly scaled and heavy-bodied. It is easily identified by its angular, heart-shaped head. Colors range from black to dirty olive. Most specimens are about three feet long.

Diphtheria Carriers

J. G. Alcock insists most people are honest. For 17 years he has left his display stock out overnight on the sidewalk of his hardware store at Bayboro, N. C., and in that time has lost articles by theft only once or twice. Occasionally a customer will come along after store hours and pick up some needed item, but usually, says Alcock, he will come around later and settle up. Alcock's failure to move his stock inside is also partly due to the fact that he just hasn't room for it on his shelves.

Phenothiazine Poisoning

Phenothiazine poisoning is apt to occur when large doses of this worm medicine are given. Because some owners have no conception of the proper amount to give animals, there have been many cases of severe illness due to overdosing. Except in extreme cases, phenothiazine-poisoned swine recover with a minimum of treatment, but they must be kept out of the sun. If left exposed to hot sunshine, most of them will die.

Florence Nightingale

Florence Nightingale, who was the founder of the modern profession of nursing, led an organized revolt against physical and environmental dirt. In the face of strong opposition, she demanded cleanliness of the women who worked with her as nurses and her first orders to this group were for cleanliness. She died at the age of 91.

Preventing Cattle Bloat

To keep bloating in check, hungry cows should never be turned into a lush clover pasture without first feeding them all the nutritious hay they will eat just before turning into pasture. This can be accomplished by taking cattle off pasture early in evening and feeding hay next morning before allowing on pasture.

Largest Inland Sea

Caspian Sea, which lies between Europe and Asia, is the world's largest inland sea, according to the World Book encyclopedia. Bordered on three sides by Soviet territory, and on its southern shore by Persia, the Caspian sea covers nearly 170,000 square miles, an area larger than that of Illinois, Wisconsin and Iowa combined.

First Steel-Frame Skyscraper

The great Chicago Fire of 1871 wiped out the entire business district and left a third of the population homeless. The city was built with amazing speed, but with metal, brick and stone to prevent a recurrence of the wholesale destruction by the fire. Out of this development came the construction in Chicago of the world's first steel-frame skyscraper.

Woodchuck Cold-Blooded

Human beings do not sleep nearly as soundly or as long as many members of the animal kingdom. The woodchuck sleeps so soundly during his winter hibernation that only a small spark of life is kept flickering. Indeed, his temperature drops almost to freezing, and in very cold weather ice crystals may even form in his blood.

Protecting Winter Clothes
Articles in a reasonably tight trunk, chest or wooden box can be protected perfectly during the summer by scattering one pound of either flake naphthalene or parachlorobenzene between the folds of the clothing, preferably between sheets of thin clear paper.

Westminster Hall
Westminster hall was built in 1097. The trial of Charles I, later beheaded, was held there. So was the trial of Guy Fawkes, who in 1605 planted gunpowder in the cellar to blow up Parliament. His unsuccessful exploit long has been commemorated by a traditional search of the cellars before each parliamentary session.

Coal Mine Explosions
Two main hazards of coal mining are coal dust and gas. Coal dust is highly explosive. The best method of stopping an explosion from coal dust is rock dusting, a method in use for 25 years. Rock dusting is simply applying pulverized stone to the walls and roofs of the passageways. When a local explosion occurs it will throw a cloud of rock dust into the air along with the coal dust, and since rock dust is incombustible the explosion will die.

A Patch in Time
A patch of imitation or real leather sewed on the knees of boys' play knickers save time and knickers.

California Gold Rush
The first big rush for gold gave California in 1848, the year of the gold rush, a predominantly masculine population of 250,000 or more.

Madison Square Garden
Madison Square Garden, N. Y., where so many famous prize fights have been staged, isn't a garden and isn't on Madison square. This old sports arena was built in 1924 and was made famous by Tex Rickard and Jack Dempsey.

The Omnipresent Rat
Black rats of ancient history invaded the granaries of Egypt, afflicted the Hebrews with plague, and are reported to have stimulated the Romans to import snakes to kill them. They reached England during the reign of the house of Hanover, and were therefore called "Hanoverian rats." The rat thrives in any climate on any kind of food. In the tropics they often nest in palm trees, descending at night to plunder food stocks of man.

U. S. Automotive Workers
Over eight million workers in the United States, or one in every seven, are in automotive fields.

Without Noises
Noise measurement tests prove that the electric trackless trolley is the quietest of all transit vehicles.

When Ducks Cannot Fly
Just before the molting period, ducks and geese fly to bodies of water where they will be safe from land enemies. The reason is the fact that they molt their primary feathers all at one time and, for a short period, cannot fly.

Historic Bear Tracks
A wounded bear, followed by a pioneer hunter, in 1874 led to the discovery of the Oregon caves near Grants Pass in southern Oregon. The caves, deep in the heart of Mt. Eljah, offer more than two miles of passageways and marble rooms filled with a wealth of fanciful formations.

White House Mail
Mail addressed to the White House gets closer scrutiny than any other in the land. Secret service men, postal inspectors and the mail room staff of some 20 persons analyze every piece received and use fluoroscopes and x-ray machines on all packages that arrive.

SHORT STORY

Seventh Inning Stretch

By FERN AUBLE

THE stadium was filled to capacity for the opening game and a swelling chorus of voices filled the air. The sun was a brilliant ball in a sky of blue. But Johnny Longstreet sat hunched in the dugout, his huge hands hanging loosely between his knees. The banter of his teammates was a meaningless babel to him.

"I wonder how she is by now," he thought miserably. His blue eyes darkened in despair as he thought of the interminable afternoon before him. He groaned and glanced over at Corky Blanton.

It was too bad that Chuck Leighton had sprained an ankle. Doc said he'd be back in the lineup by next week, but next week was too late and Corky was depending on Johnny to pitch this opening game.

"How's it going, Johnny?" Corky dropped down on the bench beside him and laid a comforting hand on his knee.

"Gosh, Corky, I don't know. The Doc said she'd be all right, but I wish to Heaven I could be there with her." His knuckles whitened as he clenched his hands and Corky watched him with troubled eyes.

As Johnny took the mound for the top half of the first inning, a cheer rose from the stands. His heart warmed at the sound and some of the sag lifted from his shoulders. He looked at Windy Norton, who was catching, and nodded as he caught the signal. As he started his wind-up, a fleeting vision of Milly's scared little face crossed his mind. He knew when the ball left his hand, it was a stinker. Sure enough, Bill Lofton, the big Pirate shortstop, laid on it for a three-base hit. A groan went up from the crowd.

He got hold of himself and fanned the next three men up, leaving Bill Lofton stranded on third. As he faced the first man up in the second inning, Johnny's arm felt like lead.

"If I just knew how she was," he thought. "If I just knew she was all right."

He tried desperately to keep his mind on the game, to keep from thinking about Milly, but, in spite of himself, he failed miserably. He simply couldn't keep her out of his mind.

IT HAPPENED in the sixth inning. He walked the first man and the next batter up hit for a single, putting a man on first and third. A sacrifice hit brought in the first run of the game for the Pirates.

As the seventh inning came up, and the boys trotted out to their positions, Corky turned impatiently as someone tapped him on the shoulder. He took the note handed to him. His face spread into a huge grin and he ran out to the mound. "Well," Johnny thought, "here's where I get yanked and I don't blame him. Any rookie pitcher could toss rings around me today."

But Corky simply handed Johnny the paper. Johnny read it and let out a whoop. The fans watched in bewilderment as they saw Johnny go into a dance. Then they saw his teammates come running in and cluster around him to break away with howls and back-thumpings.

Finally, everyone back in position, Johnny toed the mound and squinted at Windy, waiting for the signal. As it came, he gave a satisfied nod and started his wind-up. The ball whizzed over the plate and you could almost see the smoke trailing it. The next one was a beautiful slow ball that broke just right. Johnny grinned happily as the batter took a healthy swing at the next one and missed.

The Reds got two runs in the eighth, giving them a one-run lead over the Pirates and Johnny put them away one, two, three in the ninth. Not a very big lead, to be sure, but big enough, especially when you consider that Johnny hadn't really pitched much of a game before Corky'd brought him that little slip of paper at the beginning of the seventh.

Oh yes, the note? Well, it really wasn't a very big message; that is, not very big in words. It merely said, "It's twin, darling. Two future major league ball-players. See that you make them proud of their Daddy today." And it was signed "Milly."

The Killer's Target

By KATHYRN WILSON

JOE SAND, bank clerk, had decided to kill a man. Looking back on his 47 years, he realized how spineless they had been. Without knowing exactly what to do about it, he had long since grown tired of fetching and carrying for exacting Elmer Dunning, president of Webbville's First National bank. And what had happened lately left his spirits flatter than any ledger line.

John Morrie, the cashier, resigned to take a job in an eastern city and the cashier job in old First National became the plum ready to drop into the lap of some lucky man. Joe was next in line for promotion, but he was worried.

He wanted to ask Dunning about the board's plans and didn't have the courage. The small blue eyes in his bony face filled with fear at the thought of such audacity. Somehow he couldn't stretch the narrow shoulders on his short thin frame to the necessary width of confidence.

IN SHORT order Joe's hopes were dashed to oblivion. Why did some fellows have all the luck? That young upstart, Harry Coats, who'd been brought on from New York, made cashier over the heads of the four men having seniority in the bank's marble elegance! Resentment blazed high until the three younger men got to liking Coats well enough to forgive him.

But Joe Sand, thoroughly incensed, couldn't forgive. He hated Coats, he hated Dunning, he hated everybody. His thoughts were cruel hot daggers slashing every moral fiber within him. He was determined—to kill!

Dunning needn't think that Joe Sand, the slave, hadn't a chickadee's guts. Just because he didn't parade a push and drive was no proof that he hadn't secret ambitions to rise in banking circles.

Joe glanced quickly around his modest room in Mrs. Miller's select boarding house. Shakingly, he took a gun out of the bottom drawer of the tired-looking pine bureau, thrust it into his pocket. The weapon had belonged to his father and was rusty with neglect. It had been used for target practice in the Sand family's small back yard, but never to spill human blood. It hadn't been shot off in years. Joe hoped it wouldn't fail him—everybody and everything else had.

At the bank that noon Joe had to be reminded that it was time to go for his daily chocolate malt. Naturally taciturn, he was even more so now and his co-workers flung him questioning glances and whispered among themselves about what was "eating old Sandie." But through it all he was grimly determined. He was doing his last duty for the stalwart old bank which had supported him for 20 years. He had to get everything in order before they took him away—after the killing.

He had brought his records up to date near closing time when he happened to notice Harry Coats doing a peculiar thing. Harry, white-faced, was coming out of the vault, his arms loaded with currency.

JOE wheeled and faced a masked man on the customers' side of the cashier's window. The gun pointed at Joe was no toy.

"Put 'em up or I'll drill yuh!" The intruder's gaze shifted to the rolls of bills. Joe's right hand dropped to his coat pocket.

Just in time, Joe dodged the bullet that whizzed past. But the shot he fired was followed immediately by the stranger's curse as he hit the floor.

As though jet propelled, Joe darted from behind the counter, and up to the still body.

"Careful, Joe!" warned Coats. "It's a trick—he'll shoot!"

But Joe ignored caution, knelt beside the hefty stranger, laid a hand on his bloody shirt front. Then he got quickly to his feet and announced dramatically, "The skunk's dead—quite dead!"

Something like knighthood valor went sailing through Joe. Why, this was odd! Never had he felt so masterful. Why, he couldn't feel inferior to anybody or anything after this! Nor afraid. Not even afraid of himself.

It was a lucky break that he hadn't gotten around to that killing he'd planned to do today. After all, it would be a pity to disgrace the Sand name. No man ever got even with anybody by putting a bullet through his own head.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Edwards and Doris attended the funeral of Mrs. Herbert Miller, at Downers Grove on Friday afternoon. Later they visited Mr. and Mrs. George Christoffersen and family at Elmhurst, and spent the evening there.

Mr. and Mrs. William Thompson and Helen spent Saturday in Kenosha.

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Wells, of Waukegan, and Mrs. Caroline Marble and Earle Crawford attended the Passion Play in Zion Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. O'Haire, of River Forest, visited the H. A. Tillotson home Sunday afternoon. Barbara, John and Roger Lange, of Hebron, visited over the weekend with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. King.

West Newport school held their picnic at the schoolhouse on Sunday. Mrs. Gilmore, of Gurnee, has been hired to teach there next year.

Chases Cotton Westward
Weevil damage is partly responsible for the expansion of cotton production in west Texas and Oklahoma where the hot, arid climate prevents the insect from becoming abundant, and in the irrigated sections of New Mexico, Arizona and California, where it has never become established. But there is evidence that it is becoming better acclimated to adverse climatic conditions.

Sodium Fluoride

One of the most harmful parasites of pigs is the round worm. Sodium fluoride is one of the best drugs that can be used against it. Sodium fluoride is poisonous. Containers should be conspicuously labeled and stored out of reach of children, household pets, and persons not familiar with its poisonous nature.

Injurious to Chickens

If the brooder house is given a heavy spraying with creosote or a coal tar disinfectant, the chicks should not be placed in the house for several days. The strong fumes are injurious to chicks.

Gaseous Fertilizer

In 1947 over 200,000 acres in the Mississippi delta were fertilized with ammonia. Those familiar with the development expect that more than a million acres will be so treated in 1948.

Highway Transportation in N. Y.
In New York state 84 per cent of all communities depend solely upon highways for transportation of goods. Dairy products, of great importance to the economy of the state, move almost entirely by truck.

Install Night Cooling now!

Sure, it was hot last summer. . . and it's going to be hot again this year. More than two months of over 85° temperatures are in store for this area . . . and you! You can plan now to beat the heat - install a night cooling fan in your house or apartment.

Even the hottest days are bearable when you've had a good night's sleep. In a night cooled home, the hot, stifling air that keeps you tossing for hours is drawn out of the rooms. . . and replaced by cool, refreshing night air from outside. This gently moving air makes you feel cooler. . . lets you sleep in comfort. . . and lowers the temperature of the rooms.

Don't wait for the hot weather to get here. Find out about this new way to summer sleeping comfort.

What's the Nimblest Number on the highway?

THAT's a big question, taking in a lot of territory, and we'd be the last to deny you the right to your opinion.

But, sir — before you slip up behind this tidy SUPER with the idea of giving it the go-by, better figure what you're up against!

It's big, certainly — six-persons roomy and two-tons hefty as it takes to the road.

But take a look at the size of that bonnet — it isn't there just for show! It's filled to the brim with straight-eight power — and a very special kind of power at that.

For Buick's the only car on the road today that puts Fireball power under your treadle foot.

It's the only car in which pistons are specially shaped to roll each tiny fuel charge into a compact ball that lets loose with extra lift and surge.

And that means that this clean-lined fleetster is exactly what it looks like — a star performer.

A nudge on the gas treadle — and it's gone with the wind.

A swing of the wheel, and this low-swung carriage takes curves with the ease and sureness of straightaways.

As for rough spots, even they won't slow you down, so smoothly does this beauty take all kinds of going in its stride.

You can see, of course, how steady it is. How the body rides level and unperturbed while four soft coil springs soak up the jars and jolts.

As for handling, well once you've tried it, we know exactly what you'll do.

You'll see the nearest Buick dealer, with or without a car to trade, and get a firm order in right now.

BUICK alone has all these features

- * DYNAFLOW DRIVE (Optional, Roadmaster Series)
- * VIBRA-SHIELDED RIDE
